

STRATEJM LAUNCHES CANADA'S FIRST SECURITY-AS-A-SERVICE

TORONTO, ON - MARCH 10, 2016 — The global threat landscape is evolving at a rapid pace. Stratejm has launched its unique answer to help significantly reduce the risk posed by mounting threats in the digital world to Canadian business.

High-profile and costly security breaches have become extremely common in recent years. Confidential data owned by many companies - including Home Depot, Sony and Ashley Madison - has been accessed and leaked by hackers, resulting in embarrassing and costly repercussions.

Stratejm has developed Canada's first Security-as-a-Service (SaaS) that is purpose-built to tackle these challenges in an innovative and cost-effective manner. Offering the full benefits of cloud computing, Stratejm's SaaS integrates big data analytics, machine learning and threat intelligence to significantly reduce business risk. Backed by their state-of-the-art Cyber Intelligence Centre, Stratejm is actively hunting for suspicious behaviour, anomalies or other indicators of compromise.

President and CEO John Menezes envisioned the solution upon concluding that the traditional preventative approach to cyber security has failed miserably. "You cannot continue to spend capital on a failed strategy and expect a better outcome," he says. "Stratejm's SaaS integrates all applications, network and security assets to provide a 360-degree view of your environment to solve the visibility problem."

Carl Hayes, Stratejm's Vice President of Business Development, believes Stratejm offers a more responsive and cost-effective service when compared to traditional alternatives. "Customers can realize Stratejm's value proposition without making additional capital investments in new technology," he says. "Our business philosophy is summed up as follows: No capital. No Contracts. No Compromise. Time to value is maximized and customers quickly begin to realize their Return On Investment."

Stratejm is committed to being a leader in the SaaS market and strategic partner to our client organizations. To that end, we must continuously innovate while simultaneously maintaining the highest standards of customer satisfaction at competitive prices. Our success depends on our ability to consistently evolve with the ever changing threat landscape.

For more information and interview opportunities please contact:

Laura Regehr
laura.regehr@stratejm.com || 416.305.5747 || www.stratejm.com